

“SHE’S GOT STYLE, DO YOU?”

LOS ANGELES, CA - In the oh so glittery city of fake noses, lipo-bodies and the scam artist who make young girls feel they need those things to succeed in the competitive business of modeling, there's a woman who warns, "Be careful what you wish for you just might get it!" Jean Marshall, age 34 but svelte, tall and sexy as any young doe on the runway has quit the biz and has taken up sides with the models themselves!

Ms. Marshall, you see, is positioning herself to be the first true guidance consular for young models in the making. She trains individuals in the basic skills of modeling, warns them of fraudulent scams and bestows the tools they'll need to maintain integrity and self-esteem in the critical and often destructive world of high fashion. Jean Marshall will prepare you for modeling and, in the end, you just may be better prepared for life itself. For times and dates of her classes, workshops and seminars please contact.

Marshall started as a young innocent herself, a transport from Orange County CA to the dog-eat-dog runways of Europe. There, she got more than her fair share of knowledge about the business and the pitfalls that go with it. Her goal? To help young girls be better prepared for the job and lifestyle of modeling. Marshall has taken these life lessons mixed them in with traditional finishing school techniques, added a dash of psychology, nutrition and image consultation and came up with a workshop that may prove to be revolutionary-- young girls will know what is expected of them as models, what is inappropriate and illicit, and they'll be able to handle their careers better. She guarantees it!

Jean Marshall, author of the upcoming "Six Steps Toward Success in Modeling" affectionately calls herself "The Image Source." She can be reached personally with any questions at Ms. Marshall is also available for speaking engagements, radio and television interviews upon request. Whether you're an aspiring model, a concerned mother of a model wannabe, or a business person in need of image consultation and a make-over, there is help out there for the rest of us...finally!
